BANK OF ENGLAND,

8th December, 1875.

MY DEAR GOVERNOR,

The majority of the following Tables were compiled for my own use while Governor; and, in the hope that they may be useful and interesting to the Governors and other members of the Court, I am induced to preserve them.

The most remarkable fact that they establish is the recurrence, at particular periods, of a regular ebb and flow of certain items of the Bank's account. The action of these tides would appear to be so certain, that, unless it be interrupted by some unusual occurrence, it may be almost accurately predicted; and the cause of the accidental interruption is generally easily detected on investigation.

I have added some further statistics relating to the Bank which supply interesting information not hitherto easily accessible.

I have appended to each Table a reference to the features of interest that it exhibits; but these will, in most cases, be found to be sufficiently obvious to the reader.

In correcting and completing these Tables, I have been greatly assisted by Mr. S. O. GRAY, the Deputy-Chief Cashier, who has supervised the work while it has been passing through the press.

I remain,

MY DEAR GOVERNOR,

Yours faithfully,

BENJⁿ B. GREENE.

HENRY HUCKS GIBBS, Esq^{re}

BANK OF ENGLAND,

23rd July, 1890.

MY DEAR GOVERNOR,

At the request of SIR MARK COLLET, before he left the Chair, I undertook the superintendence of continuing the Tables made up from the Bank Accounts, from 1875 to the end of 1889.

I have introduced some fresh statistics, which I think will be found interesting, and I hope useful.

I have now much pleasure in presenting the result to you.

Believe me,

Yours sincerely,

BENJⁿ B. GREENE.

The Bank of England is the central bank of the United Kingdom. It is responsible for issuing banknotes and coins, and for maintaining the stability of the financial system. The Bank's primary objective is to support the economic growth and stability of the country.

TABLE I.

Table I contains financial data, likely a balance sheet or income statement, with columns for various categories and rows for different periods. The text is too faint to transcribe accurately.

TABLE I. VARIATION in each Month of NOTES WITH THE PUBLIC, and the state of the RESERVE and BULLION on the same Days.

THIS Table ranges over a period of twenty-five years, from 1865 to 1889, and exhibits, in a very striking manner, the monthly recurrence of an increase and decrease of the demand of the Public for Bank Notes. This demand ebbs and flows, in each month of the year, with the regularity of a tide, usually attaining its maximum for the month on the first Tuesday or Friday—more generally on the Tuesday; and its minimum on one of the two last Mondays or Thursdays—more generally on a Monday. The exceptional action of this tide, when the maximum or minimum occasionally falls on some other than the regular day, or when, as it occasionally happens, the maximum that ordinarily occurs at the commencement of a month is reached in anticipation on one of the last two or three days of the preceding month, is recorded in a separate column. In the case of the former of these exceptions the variations are usually slight, and are probably due to accidental circumstances: the latter only occurs at a period when an increase of the whole volume of the circulation is in progress.

In the months of January, April, July, and October, the return of Notes to the Bank is retarded by an outward current consequent on the payment of the dividends on the Government Funds, and this current sometimes overcomes the inward tide, and causes an exceptional maximum about the middle of the month; though it more frequently occurs at the usual time before the payment of the dividends is commenced. In these months—but, in all cases, before the dividends become payable—the outside public usually take about £1,000,000 more Notes than at the same period in other months.

Since 1879, the demand at the end of each quarter has on the whole been less than formerly.

In the months of June and December the minimum is usually (not always) reached about a week earlier than in the other months.

These fluctuations do not appear to be influenced either by the state of the Exchanges or by the rate of interest.

The RESERVE varies, of course, in sympathy with the Notes and BULLION; but the movements of the latter are independent.

The effect of the crisis in 1873 is apparent from the unusually large outflow of Notes which took place between the end of September and the close of the year.
