THESE Tables are intended to show the share which the movements of Coin and Bullion had in the monetary disturbance at the period of the several Crises; and they would seem to prove that these movements did not materially contribute to the Crisis at any of the periods under review.

- *
(b) Crisis of 1857.
(c) „ 1866.

The Crisis of 1857 occurred at a time when Ireland usually takes Coin, and when the ordinary half-yearly demand for Scotland was in progress; and the remittances to both countries after the issue of the Government Letter were somewhat in excess of the usual amounts: those to Scotland being no doubt increased by the distrust consequent on the failure of the Western Bank of Scotland, which occurred at this period. The Exports and Imports of Coin and Bullion during this Crisis appear to have been of very ordinary proportions.

In 1866 the remittances of Coin to and from Ireland and Scotland at the time of the Crisis were of the usual moderate amount, and their effect on the Money Market must have been altogether unimportant. The Exports and Imports of Coin and Bullion were both considerable at this period; but the Imports were throughout larger than the Exports.

- (d) 1873. Money Panic in New York.

Between the 24th September and the 8th November, the large amount of £1,800,000 in Sovereigns was taken for New York, the greater portion being withdrawn during the latter part of September and the beginning of October.

- (e) 1873. Failure of the City of Glasgow and the West of England and South Wales District Banks.

Immediately following the failure of the City of Glasgow Bank, Scotland took £1,400,000 in Sovereigns, which is nearly double the amount usually required during the autumn of each year.

* There being no daily accounts for 1847 (a) in existence, the figures for that period cannot be given.
